

WELL DONE: Emily Brybag and Stephanie Butler proudly show off their Junior BP awards.

Guides on the right track

STEPHANIE Butler and Emily Brybag from the Nowra Junior Girl Guides have just gained their Junior BP award after nearly two years of challenging work.

They received their badges and certificates at a ceremony at the Nowra Girl Guides hall on Tuesday afternoon.

The Junior BP Award is a peak achievement found in Aim High and is for active Girl Guides who are ready for an extra challenge from Guiding.

Both girls had to complete two challenges from each Fundamental. The Fundamentals were promise and law, service, outdoors, Guiding traditions, world Guiding and patrol system.

Among the activities the girls had to complete were first aid, canoe-ing, flying fox, service to the elderly and cooking enough food for the whole unit.

They also paid a visit to the Nan Tien Temple in Wollongong to learn about a different religion.

By achieving this award, they have gained a lot of life skills including cooking, navigating and using initiative. They both said they wanted to stay on with the Girl Guides.

Nowra Girl Guides leader Anne Wood said Guiding helped every young girl achieve what she wants to aim for.

If you have a daughter who wants to join Girl Guides and is from seven to 12 years old, contact Anne Wood on 4421 5705 for the Nowra Unit, or Maria Jolly on 4421 4736 for other areas in the Shoalhaven.
